

MINISTRY ^{EN} LO COTIDIANO

2021-2022

What is Ministry en lo Cotidiano (MLC)?

Ministry en lo Cotidiano means “ministry in the everyday.” Lo cotidiano is a concept drawn from the work of Latine theologians in the United States over the last 40 years.¹ It describes the starting place for knowing and understanding God (for doing theology) as the real, lived experience of Latine communities in this country. These are experiences that have been marked by marginalization and celebration, by injustice and profound grace.

MLC is a non-employment based experience \(NEBO\) - and fellowship that provides faith formation and ministerial leadership development for undergraduate and graduate students interested in experiencing faith-based service in Latine communities in Chicago and the surrounding suburbs. The purpose of the MLC Fellowship is to develop leaders for the future of the Church and Latine communities in the United States. Currently, Latines make up more than 50% of the US population of Catholics under the age of 25 and those numbers are even higher in the Sunbelt states.² Dominican University is uniquely positioned to play an important role in this kind of vocational formation as a Catholic institution with a distinctly Dominican charism that is also a Hispanic-Serving Institution. We partner with parishes and community-based organizations on Chicago’s Southwest side and the near-West suburbs to create dynamic immersive experiences for students and supports their formation through an innovative theological reflection model.

Is Ministry en lo Cotidiano for Me? Who Should Apply?

If you will be a student in the 2021-2022 academic year and are interested in and deeply invested in Latine cultures and theologies and making an investment in Latine communities, you should discern application to this program. If you are a student willing to explore the rich stories of Latine faith communities and their experiences, this program is for you! Additionally, students who have experience or are interested in any of the following are strongly encouraged to apply:

- Dominican University Ministry programs
- Service trip experiences, Community-Based Learning, or justice and advocacy
- Applied curricular experience including, but not limited to areas such as:
 - Latine and Latin American Studies
 - Business, Communications and Entrepreneurship
 - Interfaith courses and experience
 - Political Science
 - Psychology
 - Sociology
 - Social Work

¹The concept of lo cotidiano, or daily lived experience, is traced thoroughly by Carmen Nanko-Fernández, “Chapter 1: Lo Cotidiano as Locus Theologicus,” in The Wiley Blackwell Companion to Latino/a Theology, ed. Orlando O. Espín, 1st Ed. (Chichester, West Sussex, UK ; MJalden, MA: Wiley, 2015), 31–49.

² Putnam, Robert D., and David E. Campbell. American Grace: How Religion Divides and Unites Us. New York: Simon & Schuster, 2012, 299. Also, we recognize that language continues to evolve and that all collective names for peoples with roots in Latin American tend to collapse important differences. University Ministry privileges the way that people identify themselves within community and therefore students may choose from a variety of ways of describing their communities.

- Social justice experience (SJCE minors)
- Retreat or prayer leadership
- Liturgical Leadership at Mass
- High School Campus Ministry or Parish Youth Ministry programs
- Other campus leadership roles or faith-based experience
- Undergraduate students who maintain a minimum GPA of 2.0
- Commitment to deepening one's faith, engaging in service and social justice, and developing an authentic university faith community with a welcoming, open, and inclusive spirit
- Ability to manage time and work in a collaborative setting with other participants in MLC, University Ministry staff, and manage internship responsibilities
- Enthusiasm, commitment, and desire to reach out and make an impact within our Dominican University and local Latine community

What does the program look like?

University Ministry looks for 10-15 students to place at fellowship sites in Latine communities. Fellowship responsibilities span a wide range of activities including but not limited to accompaniment of immigrants, community organizing, education and tutoring, immigration legal services, increasing food security and faith development and campus ministry. A list of past and current placements can be found on our website. The experience of faith, service and everyday life of Latine faith communities is one of encounter, or encuentro. Weekly theological reflection sessions that draw upon the deep wells of Latine theologies provide a safe and brave space for interns to process and interpret their experiences. In encountering el Pueblo de Dios and reflecting upon those encounters, interns inevitably encounter their own shifting cultural identities and reinterpret them in the light of faith. A competent staff member at each of the partner organizations supervises Dominican students on-site while a trained University Minister prepares and guides small groups in theological reflection.

Program Benefits

Dominican University students' time is valuable. University Ministry recognizes that you have competing commitments and need your time and space to work to support yourself in your studies and, in some cases, your families. This non-employment based experience (NEBO) and fellowship engages students in immersive learning in community for ten hours per week spanning ten weeks of the fall and spring semesters. Students also receive at least 12 hours of professional development training and may be eligible for academic credit that appears on one's transcript through the Theology Department or any other academic department pending approval by the chair and a professor of record.

Every fellow receives a generous stipend of $1500 per semester or $3,000 for the year. Eligibility for the full award will be determined individually. Here is a brief step-by-step outline of the process:

1. Stipend amounts will be determined based on the student's cost of attendance
2. The result will be added as financial aid to your tuition account
3. Applicants consent to allow the Office of Financial Aid to share information with University Ministry regarding financial aid eligibility and total award amounts. This information is used to determine if the applicant is eligible to receive the full stipend.
4. Applicants will be notified of their eligibility and the amount of the award prior to interviewing.
5. Students whose cost of attendance prohibit them from receiving a partial or full award may choose to continue in the application process and, if selected, participate in the fellowship with an amended or partial fellowship award.
6. If the stipend amount exceeds the student's tuition balance, a refund of the tuition account can be requested.
7. If the refund amount exceeds the student's qualified costs (required tuition and fees), the refund amount may be subject to federal tax withholding and reporting.

Trainings are required elements of the program, but as benefits they are unpaid hours. Other benefits of this program include:

- Making connections between the classroom and your daily life explicit and concrete.
- Developing professional skills that you will use in postgraduate employment such as:
 - professional and clear communication;
 - taking initiative and problem solving;
 - planning and executing an event;
 - caring for work spaces;
 - collaboration;
 - practicing hospitality and creating a culture of inclusion;
 - and prioritizing time and developing self-direction in tasks.
- Developing a professional identity that can be clearly articulated in an interview and on a resume.
- Developing practices of self and communal reflection done in the light of faith and culture to do the following:
 - find meaning and purpose in work;
 - discover vocational calling;
 - practice discernment;
 - hold yourself accountable to God and others;
 - develop a sense of self and communal identity;
 - and better understand the context in which God call you to discipleship within communities – in one’s cultures, faith traditions and human development.
- Identifying your own social location so that you can better understand the struggles and joys in the daily lived experiences of others and accompany them more effectively, especially those in the communities in which you serve.³

Roles and Responsibilities
